APRIL 27, 2011:

An EF5 tornado devastated Smithville, MS. Evidence shows a SUV was tossed 1/4 mile into the side of the town's water tower (shown by the SUV-sized dent in the tower), then thrown another 1/4 mile. Now a mangled mess of metal, the SUV was barely recognizable (as would have been any occupant).

Too important to have a fight about

Battle lines drawn. Positions solidified. Arguments made.

All thrilling, perhaps fun, but unlikely to change minds.

If your cause is important enough, it's worth taking the time and emotional energy to make your case without an argument. The opportunity is to recast your outcome in terms of the other person's worldview, not insist that they change what they want or what they think they know.

The culture isn't immutable. You can change it.

But not by picking a fight.

Three wishes

When you're feeling stuck with your project, grab three index cards. On each card, write down an element of the project that, if you invested time and money, would change for the better?

If those three things happened, if those three elements improved, what would happen to your project?

Okay, now that you've got all three . . . what are you going to do about it?
